Your obligations

If an APRA-regulated institution becomes aware it has breached (or will breach) a prudential requirement, it may have obligations to report the breach to APRA.

The relevant legislative requirements for reporting breaches are found in the Prudential Acts.

- s. 62A of the Banking Act 1959
- s. 38AA of the Insurance Act 1973
- s. 132A of the Life Insurance Act 1995
- s. 29JA of the Superannuation Industry (Supervision) Act 1993

When must you notify APRA?

Some breaches or matters must be reported immediately to APRA in writing.

Other significant breaches or matters must be reported to APRA in writing within 10 business days of becoming aware that a breach has occurred or will occur.

Refer to the relevant legislation to determine whether a breach or matter needs to be reported and for the required timeframe.

Failure to notify APRA of a breach

Failure to notify APRA of a breach within the required time frame is an offence under each relevant Act.

Format of Breach Notification

Breach notification must be in writing.

For ease of reporting, APRA has made available an Online Breach Notification System. Alternatively you may use this form and send to APRA. APRA prefers institutions to use the Online System.

Reporting breaches to ASIC

Breaches under APRA administered legislation may also breach ASIC-administered legislation. You should determine if you are also required to report the breach to ASIC.

If you use the Online Breach Notification System to report your breach, you can elect for APRA to pass it on to ASIC, fulfilling your reporting obligations. If you notify APRA of your breach using this form, you must report your breach separately and directly to ASIC.

You cannot use the Online System or forms to report a breach that relates solely to ASIC-administered legislation. You should refer to ASIC to ascertain how to report these breaches.
